Dear Judge,

I am a student at the University of Southern California, and use computers as one of the primary tools for education and learning. I do not feel that allowing microsoft to abuse the anti trust laws is allowing me to gain all of the possible learning tools for my major. If they have a monopoly over software, I am limited to make my own decisions in applications. PFJ is not enough. Thank you for taking the time to read this.

God Bless,
Campbell
